

Welcome to THE DEN

Spread over 13 acres of reserve forest land, surrounded on three sides by thick Sal forest hills and gentle murmuring Kosi River flowing down the other side along the whole length is the 'The Den'.

The resort is concealed in thick mango grove garden that offers you and the jungle native animals hang ripe and luscious mangoes of various kinds in season.

It has previously been the hunting ground of British in India, prior to the independence. The resort has tried and secures the history with in the cottages by renovating them and making them luxurious to suit the modern day to day needs.
